

Journal – September 2023

The September Journal was printed on time and is being collected by Members. We again ran to 28 pages. The theme of the next issue is Memories and we already have some contributions and Society events on which to report. At this time in the Journal cycle this is very satisfying.

We remain within budget. Postage of the Journal continues to fluctuate but we had no difficulty in printing the September Journal. Our IT Officer has updated the Treasurer's old computer and we are now using it for printing Journal and Publications. Instruction sheets for printing exist and settings on the printing computer have been transferred from the old computer. It is still envisaged that our current budget will be appropriate for the remainder of 2023.

I would like to thank the eTeam for their work. The December issue will be a trial for Margaret Ashford shadowing the editor tasks and further investigation of how to separate the jobs within the group. I would especially like to thank Noelene Lowes who has been arranging the layout of our Journals. This is a rewarding role and is not difficult once it is known how to implement less basic word commands and settings but is a very fiddly and time-consuming task.
